PART 2—Other PD-related Activities:

This should include decisions received from those previously undecided, relationship-building letters and thank-you letters/cards sent, calls for appointments or decisions, meetings and speaking engagements, highlights, and praises.

Email letter sent 6-23-18 was a relationship-builder. Sent snail-mail copy to one supporter (who is not online) on 6-25-18. Thank you's noted above. Spoke at Faith EFC on 6/24/18. Praise for answered prayer concerning the four sources of new support listed above. The first church listed had actually reduced my support about a year ago. They invited me to speak at their missions conference last January and as of now have nearly doubled their support. Praise God!

What I will do the next two weeks: Provide the same details as requested above in PARTS 1 & 2. Refer to your Action Plan to state exactly what you plan to do the next two weeks.

Anything else you wish to share with your coach: How are you feeling about the process? This is an important area for communicating with your coach. We are grateful when you feel comfortable sharing what is going on in your head and your heart as you raise support. We need to know how you are holding up so we can help you address any concerns.

I find that a positive attitude toward PD is vital, but often elusive. There is nothing like just one new supporter or supporter who increases giving to boost morale. The challenge is to not let decreased support pull me down, like the church that reduced support a year ago. Now they have increased it beyond what it was originally. PD comes down to trusting God always. This is His Harvest that I have the privilege of inviting others into.
